Bio

Amelia is an associate with a diverse array of transactional experience in RMG's Real Estate, Business Planning & Transactions, and Financial Services practice groups.

Amelia graduated from the University of Maryland Francis King Carey School of Law, where she participated in the Fair Housing and Eviction Prevention Clinics. Through the clinic, Amelia was solo counsel in representing a tenant in a suit against a landlord, winning the client a $15,900 judgment.

During law school, Amelia was a legislative staff member to a delegate in the Maryland General Assembly, research assistant to a legal professor, and law clerk in the Office of the Attorney General – Maryland Department of Housing and Community Development.
