Bio

Brett joined Rosenberg Martin Greenberg in March 2021 in the Tax and Wealth Planning group. The focuses of his practice are estate planning, estate and trust administration, business succession planning, fiduciary litigation, and tax controversy matters. Brett assists clients with drafting wills and a variety of trusts, from simple revocable trusts and irrevocable life insurance trusts to more sophisticated planning vehicles involving formula gifts and installment sales of business interests. He also has experience handling corporate, estate, and personal income tax matters at both the Federal and state levels. Brett also litigates estate, trust, and guardianship cases before the Orphans' Court and Circuit Court of Maryland.

Prior to joining the firm, Brett started his law practice in a mid-sized multi-specialty firm in Annapolis. Brett graduated cum laude from the University of Baltimore School of Law with a concentration in Estate Planning. He also has a Masters in Laws of Taxation with a certification in estate planning.
